The ComProCom project aims to:
- Develop a common international ‘language’ of competence to aid mutual recognition and transferability
- Develop competence descriptions that are applicable across the partnership’s countries
- Improve the way that descriptions of competence match how professions and occupations work in practice, and
- Develop competence descriptions that are resilient to changes in practice and technologies.

ComProCom will deliver:
- National reports reviewing the use of competence standards and frameworks in the participating member-states (Austria, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Poland and the United Kingdom), plus a synthesis report
- A methodological manual for developing descriptions of competence
- Competence frameworks in each of five areas of occupational activity: training and development (Ireland), business administration (Austria), chemical engineering (Germany), management of innovation (Poland), and social entrepreneurship (Greece)
- A validated training pack for developers of competence frameworks
- An academic output contributing to knowledge on occupational competence in Europe
- A European Competence Forum after the end of the project, with web resources in English, Greek, German and Polish.

ComProCom is co-funded in 2015-2017 by the ERASMUS+ Key Action 2 - Strategic Partnerships for vocational education and training.
